WOLF ROAD CASE POSTPONED FOR TWO WEEKS

Last Friday state's attorney Wm. H. McCabe and attorney Wm. Heise, the latter representing C. M. Cleveland in the Wolf rd. right of way condemnation case, mutually agreed to postpone the hearing which was set for Monday of this week for two weeks on account of attorney Heise going to Boston, Mass., to attend the wedding of his son which is to take place there this week.

The jury which had been called to appear Monday was not notified of the postponement and neither was Supervisor Wm. Kampe of Frankfort township or the people from Mokena interested in the case. When they appeared Monday morning at the County Court, state's attorney McCabe told them the hearing had been postponed for two weeks.

The members of the jury were paid $5 each for their services which were not required.

State's attorney McCabe made it very plain to the Mokena people present that he is at loggerheads with Supervisor Kampe because he did not vote in favor of the county board hiring another assistant state's attorney at $1500 per year. Mr. McCabe said:

"Your supervisor is another one of those dudes who voted against my request for an assistant attorney and I am not going to do any favors for him. I don't care if I ever try this case. Maybe we'll try it next summer. Anyway several people from your village have been in to see me asking me that the Wolf road be routed where Mr. Cleveland wants the road to go."

When asked if he was going to take his grudge against Supervisor Kampe out on the people of Frankfort township, Mr. McCabe replied: "Put the heat on Kampe."

Mr. McCabe further stated that by the time the battle for the straight route is ended it will cost Will County $10,000.

Judge Henry F. Ruel of Kankakee has not been asked to hear the case up to the present time, it has been learned.

Whether another continuance will be sought at the end of two weeks has not been disclosed.

Frankfort Man Beaten When He Seeks to Collect

When Henry Baumgartner well known cattle buyer of Frankfort asked Robert King also of Frankfort to settle a bill on October 16th, Mr. Baumgartner while seated in the cab of his truck was struck in the face by King. Mr. Baumgartner went to Joliet and swore out a warrant for the arrest of King on a disorderly conduct charge. The case came up Monday morning in the court of Dominic Romano. At first King pled not guilty, but later changed his plea to guilty. Judge Romano fined King $50 and costs. Mr. Baumgartner was represented by assistant state's attorney Charles Blim. Orville Pyle and Ervin Block, both of Frankfort, were witnesses for Mr. Baumgartner.

Echoes from The Past

Mrs. Mattes went to Chicago Thursday. Mrs. Mink and family of Aurora, are visiting with Mrs. Mink's parents Mr. and Mrs. Sehning.

George Munger and his sister Miss Emma of Green Garden, visited with kindreds here Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Krapp, of Chicago, were guests at the residence of Postmaster Sutter, Saturday.

Miss Annie Smith of Englewood, spent the latter part of the week with her parents in Mokena.

The Baumann Brothers and their sister, were among the number of those who came from Frankfort on Friday evening to trip the light fantastic.

About two o'clock Friday morning fire broke out in a barn belonging to blacksmith Brown. The fire had gained such a headway before aid arrived that nothing could be done to save the building. So their attention was drawn to the adjoining buildings which were saved, though badly damaged.

The masquerade given by the Mokena Pleasure Club proved to be a grand success. About sixty were masked. The following characters won prizes: First, Goddess of Liberty, Mrs. Zahn, Mokena; America, Mr. Hanson, Green Garden; Beggar, George Wirsch, Mokena. Quite a number from Frankfort, Tinley Park, New Lenox, Green Garden and Joliet were present.

To Hold Supper And Bazaar

A chicken supper and bazaar will be given by the Ladies Aid of Christ Lutheran church, Thursday, Nov. 2 at the public school auditorium, Orland Park, Ill. Come and bring your friends.

Noted Speaker to Address Orland Foundation Center

The Rev. Bailey Waltmire, one of the outstanding men in the organization of the unemployed councils of Chicago will be the guest speaker at the Sunday afternoon forum at the Community Center Foundation this Sunday afternoon, October 29.

Rev. Waltmire's interest in this work started some years ago when he started a soup kitchen in his church on the northwest side of Chicago for the children of the unemployed. This work has grown to an extensive program of relief until it has contacted a good portion of the unemployed in his section. Because of his fine work he was selected to head up the unemployed council work, through this and his contacts with the state organization he has gained a wide knowledge of the present crisis as it relates to the national and international situation.

Rev. Waltmire has also been active in the old age pension movement through the City Club of Chicago. This plan is to take care of the needy aged in their homes and thus do away with the heavy expense of the County Homes.

The forum will be at 3 p. m. Sunday afternoon with a discussion group meeting in the evening. All are invited to attend these interesting and instructive forums.

Mokena PTA Notes

The regular monthly meeting of the Mokena P. T. A. was held at the School Auditorium Tuesday evening, October 24, 1933. A report of the P. T. A. Conference at Wheaton was given by Mrs. Milton Krapp.

There was a very interesting program. Several instrumental numbers by the Three Aces, Mrs. Houston gave a group of reading, part of which were poems written by members of the Freshmen class. The Misses Gertrude Sippel and Bernice Muehler sang.

Mr. John gave a very interesting talk.

After the program refreshments were served by the teachers.

The New Lenox Parent Teacher Association met Friday at the school. An interesting program followed the business session. The topic for discussion was "Nutrition and Growth". Mrs. H. C. Senning spoke on "How to Get Food Essentials for the Family at Low Cost". A group of school children presented a health play, Dr. Janet Holt showed a film on "How to Induce Children to Drink Milk".

Dogs Kill Sheep on New Lenox Farms

It has been reported to the township authorities of New Lenox by Harlow Gougar that dogs recently injured one of his ewes so badly that he had to kill it. Mr. Gougar's loss is the fourth of this kind to be reported in this vicinity during the past year. One sheep owner lost as high as 25 sheep.

Tinley R. N. A. Holds Social Night

The Tinley Park Royal Neighbor Camp observed social night Tuesday night and members from Royal Neighbor camps at Homewood, Mokena, Orland Park, Harvey were the guests. In all 150 Royal Neighbors attended the affair. All report a delightful time.

FRANKFORT MAN FOUND DEAD IN LOT BY NEIGHBOR

Charles Rahm, aged 68 years, a well known resident of Frankfort, was found dead in his lot by his neighbor Jacob Feil, Wednesday afternoon about three o'clock. Apoplexy is given as the cause of death.

Mr. Rahm had borrowed Mr. Feil's horse to plow his lot. Late in the afternoon Mr. Feil decided to go over and see how the plowing was progressing. When he arrived on the Rahm lot he saw the horse and plow standing near the edge of the lot and back of the plow Mr. Feil found the lifeless body of Mr. Rahm, who it is thought was dead fully two hours before he was found.

Mr. Rahm was born in Green Garden township, April 21, 1865.

In 1898 he was married to Miss Louise Scheer of Frankfort who died of apoplexy in 1930.

Surviving are an adopted daughter, Elizabeth, three brothers, Fred of Frankfort, Henry and August of Minnesota.

Funeral services Friday afternoon at the St. Peter Evangelical church in Frankfort, with burial in the Pleasant Hill Cemetery.

The mail messenger job at the Mokena post-office is open for bids for the next ten days after posting of the official notice. For further information inquire at the post-office. August Hentsch is the present mail messenger.

NRA Minstrels Coming to Joliet

Of the many minstrels staged here for the benefit of Joliet's health camp for undernourished children, the 1933 edition is expected to stand out as the banner achievement of local entertainers, according to those who have been on hand at rehearsals at Central school during the past several weeks.

The show will be given Wednesday Thursday and Friday nights. The entire net proceeds will be turned over to the health camp fund. Without these funds the camp will be unable to serve the community next summer, causing unnecessary hardship to hundreds of children greatly in need of the fresh air and wholesome nourishment that the health camp provides.

Committees which will function at the show were appointed by Jack Hurst, president of the R. M. C. A. Industrial club, the organization sponsoring the program, and Thomas Easton, entertainment committee chairman.

The Tinley Park Garden Club met at the home of Mrs. J. E. Swisher on Thursday, October 20th about 20 members being present.

The rooms were prettily decorated for Halloween. Each member received a pretty Halloween cap to wear, also a delegate's badge. A "Crazy Convention" was in session. There were delegates from weird places. A delicious buffet luncheon was served for which the delegates paid with green money given to them by the hostess.

The birthday song was sung by the members in honor of the hostess, who had had a birthday a few days previous. A wonderful cake with the inscription "Garden Club Friends" graced the center of the table. At the conclusion of the luncheon each delegate read a message from their particular town amid much laughter and merriment.

The business meeting was called to order at 2 o'clock. Mrs. Clara Gossel thanked the members for their co-operation while she was in office, and turning the gavel over to Mrs. J. M. Klepper, welcomed her as the new president.

A beautiful vase was presented to Mrs. Gossel, as a gift from the Garden Club.

Mrs. Swisher was also presented with a beautiful plant.

Reports of committees were then given.

After the business meeting, bobbing for apples was in order. There were many wet faces but Mrs. Harry Mager proved to be champion bobbler and received a prize.

The members finally left vowing that they had spent one of the most delightful afternoons which they had had in a long time.

The November meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Henry Wyman on Thursday, November 16th. The following officers for the ensuing year are:

Mrs. J. M. Klepper, President
Mrs. H. Brueggeman, Vice-President
Mrs. A. Koehler, Secretary
Mrs. J. Werth, Treasurer
Mrs. R. Hug, Program chairman
Mrs. L. Rogers, Civic chairman
Mrs. J. Boyer, Conservation chairman
Mrs. Wm. Funk, Flower Show
Mrs. G. Hartman, Custodian
Mrs. F. Goebel, Press chairman

Homer Congregational To Celebrate 100th Birthday Sunday

Another church centennial anniversary will be observed this coming Sunday when the Homer Congregational church will celebrate its 100th birthday.

The Homer church was organized in the summer of 1833 by the Rev. Jeremiah Porter of Hadley, in Homer Township.

Sunday morning the church and Sunday school services will be combined in order that the church can be put in readiness for the program commemorating the church's birthday.

The celebration will start in the evening with a supper at 6 o'clock at 7:30 o'clock the program will be given. Rev. E. E. Hastings of Joliet will deliver the main address at this service. All past and present members will be present. Everyone has been extended a cordial invitation to attend the celebration.

Records show that the present edifice was built in 1862. Charter members of the parish were: James Gooding, Phoebe Gooding, Reuben Beach, Phoebe Beach, Eben W. Beach, Lucy E. Beach, John Blackstone, Jane Blackstone, Jasper A. Gooding, Caroline Gooding, Elizabeth Butterfield, William Bandle, Daniel Andrus, Joel Andrus and John Wright.

Officers today are the Rev. Elmer C. Ohlert, minister; Mrs. Mary Padock, church clerk; Mrs. Helen E. Rowley, treasurer; John White, Clarence G. Rowley, and Willard Rowley, trustees; Mrs. Alice Padock, Mrs. John White and Mrs. Henry Burch, deaconesses and Frank Storm, Albert Krueger, Nile White and William Rowley, deacons. The Sunday school superintendent is Mrs. Ira Anderson.

Organists each of whom serves two months in the year, are Mrs. Grace Koppelman, Mrs. Anna Burch, Emily Anderson, Mrs. Marion Millou, Mrs. Edna Rowley and Mrs. Hattie Cagurio.

To Celebrate 25th Anniversary

Thru error it was stated in last week's issue that the 25th anniversary of the Ladies Aid of the Zion Lutheran church of Tinley Park would be observed October 22nd instead of this coming Sunday evening October 29th.

ORLAND LEGION POST INSTALLS NEW OFFICERS

The Orland Park Post No. 526 of the American Legion held the installation of their newly elected officers at the Legion Hall in Orland Park on Tuesday night. The hall was well filled with the local legionnaires and visitors.

The installing officer was Otto Raymond, Commander of 4th District and was assisted by Vice-Commander Frank Prindville of the O'Donnell Eddy Post of Chicago who acted as installing sergeant.

In his installing address Commander Raymond pointed out that when the Orland Park Post first was organized three years ago it had a membership of 38 members. The next year the membership was raised to 48 members and last year it had a membership of 66 and was a 100 per cent post in membership in Illinois and the 4th District, being first in both.

Commander Raymond presented the outgoing commander Herman Kruspe with a Past Commander's badge and ring.

The officers installed were: Commander, Ray Doctor. Senior Vice-Com. Wm. Little. Junior Vice-Com. Harry Cox. Adjutant, Frances Glahn. Finance Officer, Henry Munch. Chaplain, Rev. Paul T. Sanders. Service Officer, Ray Brennan. Sergeant-at-arms, Tom Cooper.

Following the installation ceremonies a business meeting was held at which it was decided that the Post observe Armistice Day, Nov. 11th with a dance, the Post adjourned and a sumptuous feed prepared by Ray Brennan was served and greatly relished by all. Ray is a real chef and certainly knows how to put up a real feed.

In addition to the installing officers the guests were Chaplain Armstrong of the O'Donnell Eddy Post of Chicago and the editor of this paper.

Tinley Contractor Ships Machinery By Deep Waterway

Clarence Bettenhausen of Tinley Park, who has been in Pearl, Illinois for over a year with his road machinery building a new road three and a half miles long from Kampville, Illinois to Pearl, Illinois arrived home this week.

The machinery was for the first time shipped via the deep waterway and Mr. Bettenhausen found it cheaper by half and says this mode of transportation was better and more satisfactory in every way.

The consignment consisted of 200 tons of machinery which occupied 2 barges which were pushed by the towboat Hulett. They left Pearl, Illinois Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock and landed in Lockport Thursday afternoon at 5 o'clock, the barges having covered a distance of 325 miles. From Lockport the shipment went up the Sag canal to 111th street where they unloaded and will arrive in Tinley Park this afternoon (Friday).

The machinery consisted of tractors, tractor wagons, horse wagons, trailers, water pumps, cranes, house wagons, bunk house, kitchen and dining room.

Mr. Andrew Eisenbrandt of Frankfort who works with Mr. Bettenhausen boarded the barge at the Brandon Road Lock and enjoyed the rest of the trip to the Lockport Locks.

Orland Man Instantly Killed By Thunderbolt

Elmer B. F. Krohn, 24 years old and single who has resided with Amil Doctor, on a farm in the Township of Orland, Cook County, Illinois known as the Charles Doctor farm, was struck and instantly killed by a thunder bolt which struck the barn and ran down a batting directly over a door which he had opened to let the cows in at 4:45 p. m. Saturday, October 21, 1933. Mr. Krohn was going to put the cows in to milk when he was struck and killed by the thunderbolt.

He leaves to mourn his loss, his father, Ferdinand J. Krohn, his mother Minnie T. Krohn, one brother Henry Krohn, two sisters, Lucinda Krohn and Lenora Doctor, wife of Amil Doctor, besides a host of friends. He was a model young man and was liked by everybody.

He was born February 17, 1909 in Orland township and has lived here all his life.

Funeral services were held Tuesday afternoon from the Orland Park M. E. church with Rev. John Mullen and Rev. Paul T. Sanders officiating. The church was filled beyond capacity by the many mourners. Burial was in the St. John cemetery south of Mokena.

Amil Doctor who was working a short distance away from the barn when the thunderbolt struck, was knocked to his knees and for a moment was slightly stunned. He ran to the barn thinking it might be on fire and found the lifeless body of Mr. Krohn.

Organize For Action

The members of the Young Men's Bible Class of St. Peter's Evangelical church at Frankfort, met in special session in the church parlors Tuesday evening, October 17 in response to a request on part of the pastor. Twenty members of this class partook of the splendid dinner which had been prepared by five young ladies of the church. The purpose of the meeting which followed was to organize for more effective work in bringing the young men into more active contact with the work of the church.

After brief talks by the toast master, Melvin Schroeder and his assistant Emil Tewes, the pastor was called upon to outline a program for more effective cooperation and work. He explained the different methods of successful class work after which the members decided upon the personal touch method and immediately appointed the necessary committees to carry out this plan. The immediate goal of 50 active members in the Young Men's Bible Class is the big objective.

Unwise to Break Faith With Child

Promises and rewards are two closely allied measures made use of by parents to stimulate and encourage their children in good conduct and in their schooling or chosen work during undergraduate days. Used wisely, they are potent factors in securing the desired ends and reactions. It sometimes happens, however, that promises are forgotten. The child either may not get what he has worked to attain because the promise may have been given so long before its object was attained, that it has slipped the memory of the parent although it has remained a vivid factor in the child's application and endeavors. Not only is a child discouraged by such forgetfulness, but worse than this, he loses faith in his parent. He (or she) does not keep his word.

The child may make a fuss about it. If so the parent often gets annoyed and states that now, anyway, the child cannot get the reward—whatever it was, for it is forfeit by the behavior. In reality the child has justice on his side, for a forgotten promise is none the less binding when once it has been made, even though memory has grown dim. If the child is silent, the lasting effect of loss of faith in a parent's word is even worse. The child can be promised anything thereafter and it will fall on unheeding and disbelieving ears. Not only is the parent's word discounted, but the word of all persons, since parents typify the best, to their offspring.

Attaining an unearned reward is another danger to be shunned. When parents make promises dependent upon some special action or attainments and then give the award without regard to success of the child in whatever it is offered for, the parents lose their grip on the child.

Reciprocity is absolutely essential when there are promises of awards. The child must be kept faith with. The promise must be remembered. It cannot be so lightly given or regarded that it becomes inconsequential to the person making it. Parents must beware of how they make promises, but having made them, they must stand. So essential is this that no reward should be given unless it has been earned. The success of a child in later years may rest on his ability to fulfill conditions in his youth. He gets to be a spoiled child, otherwise, and one who has little respect for laws when he is an adult.

Old Timers Showed 'Em

An eight-oared shell of Harvard oarsmen, who rowed for their alma mater 50 years ago, recently made its way down the Charles river, we learn from the Winged Foot. As one old-timer in the boat put it, "We showed the undergraduates how we used to win back in the early '80s, when technique was just as important as it is now."

City Streets Rented

Paris now ropes off and rents its streets to motion picture companies with a definite charge for every actor, animal and vehicle on the location. Prices are doubled after dark because blocking of night traffic is serious.—Collier's Weekly.

Decrease in Gaels

The Gaels now inhabit only the extreme northwestern districts of Britain and part of Ireland, but according to many historians at one time the whole of the British Isles was occupied by them.—Kansas City Times.

ILLINOIS STATE NEWS

The dedication of the reconstructed century old village of New Salem has been set for October 26. By that time the 13 cabins will have been restored to their appearance at the time of Abraham Lincoln, 1831 to 1837. No automobiles will be allowed in the village.

A Jasper county grand jury at Newton returned indictments charging Harold Shelby, forty-five, and John Allen, nineteen, both of Danville, with the murder of Mrs. Mary Schrieder, eighty-two. The killing followed infliction of torture during a robbery at the home of her brother, Bernard Weldom, on August 29. At that time Weldom and Miss Anna Schrieder, daughter of the slain woman, were beaten. Earl Stark of Westville, still at large, was indicted as another member of the murder gang.

Edward J. Hughes, secretary of state, has issued certificate of incorporation No. 750 to the Loyalty League of Forgotten Democrats. Three Peorians are incorporators of the L. L. of F. D., headquarters of which are in Peoria. They are Daniel J. Fox, a public fire insurance adjuster; Francis P. Kirwin, an accountant, and Paul Kelly, a salesman. One of the objects of the new organization is adoption of the "stagger system" for jobholders in Illinois, in order to make the state jobs go around further than now possible.

Indictments charging Hugo J. Karstens, city commissioner of Wheaton, with obtaining money under false pretenses and violating the state law governing cities under a commission form of government were returned by the Du Page county grand jury. Allegations were made that Karstens, as commissioner of streets, hired workers and paid them from the city funds, but compelled those he employed to pay him a rebate.

Illinois was denied a rehearing by the Supreme court of its decision last term requiring that state to provide funds for the Chicago sanitary district which might be necessary to enable the latter to complete sewage disposal plants and otherwise comply with its order in the Lake Michigan diversion case.

Itching palms for government "easy money" are encountered in some sections of southern Illinois where attempts have been made to purchase land for a national forest preserve, according to H. L. Barker of the United States forestry service. Mr. Barker said there is to be a tract of 201,000 acres set aside to preserve and for reforestation in Union, Jackson, and Alexander counties. However, in commenting on what the government would pay for the woodland, Mr. Barker declared Uncle Sam will pay as much as anyone else will pay, no more.

Fulton county's team, composed of Frank McKenzie and Ivan and Don Mahr, captured the state championship from 11 other teams from 10 counties in the annual state poultry judging contest for 4-H club members at the University of Illinois college of agriculture. The winners will represent Illinois in a national contest during the Chicago International Live Stock exposition next spring.

More than $8,500,000 in federal land bank loans await the acceptance of 2,026 Illinois farmers, Wood Netherland, general agent for the farm credit administration announced. Since May 1 the land bank has approved 1,783 Illinois loans amounting to nearly $11,400,000. Of these 757, totaling nearly $2,900,000, have been paid out to farmers. The bank has granted extensions of time in which to pay principal on their loans to 1,754 borrowers. The emergency farm mortgage act permits a borrower to omit payments on principal for one to five years, if his loan is in good standing. Food depots will be set up by county emergency relief committee to handle pork and flour to be supplied by the emergency relief commission. It was announced. The pork is to be supplied to the state commission by the federal government from pork purchased under the agricultural adjustment act. The commission will buy the flour directly from millers in order to effect economies in price and deduction of the processing tax. Food from these depots will be made available only for families whose need for relief has been established.

Miss Armida Ray, fifty-eight years old, of Hennepin, a World's fair visitor, died in her room at the Hotel Grasmere, Chicago, following a heart attack. Miss Ray recently retired after teaching in Hennepin schools for nearly a score of years.

Grover C. Neimeyer, assistant state's attorney of Cook county, was elected grand master of the Illinois Masonic Grand lodge at the annual meeting held in Chicago. Hal C. McCloud of Springfield was elected deputy grand master.

The state department of finance issued a special ruling holding that gross receipts from subscriptions providing for the delivery of newspapers, magazines, or periodicals are subject to the 2 per cent sales tax in Illinois.

Trapped by detectives as he was kneeling before a safe, John Goodman, twenty-six, negro, was shot to death in East St. Louis as he resisted arrest.

Edward T. Dombrowski of Chicago was appointed managing officer of the Chicago State hospital. He fills a vacancy caused by the resignation some time ago of Daniel Coffey.

Lesson for October 29

WORLD'S TEMPERANCE SUNDAY

LESSON TEXT—Romans 13:11-14; 14:7-9, 15-21.

GOLDEN TEXT—Love worketh no ill to his neighbor; therefore love is the fulfilling of the law, Romans 13:10.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Why Laws Are Made.

JUNIOR TOPIC—How to Be a Good Citizen.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Why Obey the Law?

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Christian Use of Personal Liberty.

I. Supreme Motive Governing the Life of a Christian.

The attitude of a Christian is that of eager expectancy. The time of salvation here mentioned is not that which we obtain in justification and sanctification, but is that which we get when our redemption is completed in glorification at the second coming of Christ. The reasons for this attitude of expectancy are that the night of Christ's absence is far spent and the day of his glorious appearing is at hand. The proper conduct in view of this is—

1. To put off the works of darkness (v. 12). These are reveling, drunkenness, chambering, wantonness, strife, and jealousy.

2. Put on the armor of light (v. 12). The figure here is of the Roman soldier who arose from sleep and cast aside his slumber robes and put on his gleaming armor.

3. Walk honestly as in the day (v. 13). The Christian, therefore, will so order his life that his conduct will conform to his high calling.

4. Put on the Lord Jesus Christ (v. 14). This means to enthroned Jesus Christ as the Lord of the life, to bring the life under his control. No provision is to be made for the flesh; no forethought is to be given to that which the carnal nature desires.

II. No Man Liveth unto Himself (Rom. 14:7-9).

The supreme purpose of Christ's death and resurrection was that he might be the Christian's Lord in life and in death. By virtue of Christ becoming one with the race, there can be no indifference of attitude toward him.

1. All must stand before the judgment seat of Christ. It is not to be a class judgment, but individual.

2. Account must be rendered unto God. Nothing can be concealed from him. Nothing can escape his judgment, for he is omniscient.

III. A Stumbling Block Should Not Be Placed in the Way of Another (Rom. 14:15-21).

A properly enlightened Christian may have perfect liberty concerning a matter so far as he himself is concerned, but this very liberty may become an occasion of stumbling to others. Two urgent reasons are set forth for the abridgment of our liberties in such cases—

1. We may destroy the weak brother for whom Christ died (v. 15). If it was worth while for Christ to die for a man, surely it is worth while that we should deny ourselves some privileges for his sake. Nor should this be deemed a hardship. Self-denial and cross-bearing attest the sincerity of the believer (Luke 9:23), who thus follows his Master.

2. We should not allow our good to be evil spoken of (v. 16). Liberty in Christ is a precious thing, which only love knows how to use. The proof that one is in the Kingdom of God and therefore ruled by the Holy Spirit is not by eating and drinking, but by living daily the love-life which is characterized as follows—

a. Righteousness (v. 17). This means honesty and integrity in all things.

b. Peace (v. 17). This means living at peace with each other. Peace among Christians is a powerful testimony for Christ that his Holy Spirit is in them.

c. Joy in the Holy Ghost (v. 17). Saved men will manifest this joy, for "He that in these things serveth Christ is acceptable to God and approved of men" (v. 18).

3. We should follow after things that make for peace, and edify one another (v. 19). He that canst a weak brother to stumble, through exercise of his liberty, thus destroys the work of God.

4. We should abstain from meats and wines which offend the weak brother (vv. 21, 22). This is made possible by the exercise of faith in God.

IV. The Christian Should Please His Neighbor and Not Himself (Rom. 15:1-13).

This is not merely a privilege, but a solemn obligation, because, Of Christ's example (vv. 1-3).

2. Of Scripture testimony (vv. 4-13).

A Pilgrimage

All faith recognizes that life is a pilgrimage whose course and duration cannot be foreseen, and therefore it takes these lives of ours out of our own weak, trembling and uncertain control, and puts them in the hand of God.

What Are You Doing?

What are you doing to make life a little brighter and better for somebody? Mostly we are complaining because of the gloom we ourselves have done nothing to dissipate.

BEAUTY TALKS

By MARJORIE DUNCAN

TO MAKE SPINE FLEXIBLE

A STIFF spine brings with it a multitude of evils. It hampers the functioning of the vital organs. It robs the step of its spring. It makes people look prematurely old.

Here are a few simple hints to help you limber up—make your spine more flexible, your body more supple and graceful. Don't go about it too strenuously. Take it easy at first. If you are physically able, and have the time, by all means go in for some sport suited to your age and general condition. But you can do all that is necessary, in the privacy of your home.

Here is an effective spine limberer: When you are wearing no restricting clothing, stand with your feet a few inches apart, soles flat on the floor. Imagine your soles positively glued to the floor. Leave all the rest of the body limp, ready to sway this way and that on the supporting soles. Lean over, letting the head and arms hang limp, fingers touching the floor as nearly as possible. Try to undulate the spine, try to wiggle it in waves so there will not be a single vertebra which has not felt the motion. Sway the limp body in every direction. Then stand erect and sway the body forward, backward, and to each side. Wiggle shoulders, loosely, up and down. If you find the exercise monotonous, turn on the radio and do it to music. It is more enjoyable then.

If your spine curves in too much at the waist line, try to limber that particular section. It is a condition called lordosis and is the result of tense, drawn nerves. Constant wearing of high-heeled shoes will cause it. The tensed nerves pull the spine in and this automatically pushes the abdomen forward in an ugly curve. Another ugly curve is formed across the back below the waistline. In the case of the too fat woman, the fat and the ugly curve combined produce a hump effect that is ludicrous. These ugly lines may be corrected by the spine limbering exercises. The fat woman should wear medium heels or her daily walk will contract the good effect of her daily spine exercise.

When sitting, make sure that you sit well back in the chair, thighs filling the seat of the chair, back erect but not entirely straight and not rigid, feet flat on the floor, shoulders back, not tensed upward, head up and back, chin horizontal. Pull up—grow tall. Hold your head as though you were proud of something, and well you may be if your posture is correct and graceful.

When standing, remember head up, chest up, shoulders back, not up, head held high, toes pointing straight ahead, hands and arms relaxed at the sides.

AN AGE OF BEAUTY

IT'S an age of youth we're living in. And beauty is measured first in terms of good grooming and second in youthfulness. Because firm flesh is the rightful heritage of the "young uns"—it is also becoming to all ages. A firm, flowing, graceful line—that's youth and beauty—both. Few oldsters can boast it. Women especially. A shaking, wriggling little bulge here and there that boldly "tells the world"—"here I am to spoil youth's firmness" is no longer tolerated. Not by Miss Twenty. Not by Mrs. Sixty. Not by a far shot.

Corsets have made a come-back. But they aren't grandmother's kind. Nor mother's variety. If these were in vogue "before your time" you have only to look at the family album to see the effect. Steels—many of them—stiff-laces—they strait-jacketed the figure into something that looked more like an hour glass and less like a human, feminine figure.

Compare those bulky, heavy nuisances with the corsets of our day. Fashion is wise—and the corset manufacturers wiser. Witness the wonders they do with a bit of soft, porous, material. A reinforcement here, a clever cut there, a piece of elastic and you have a foundation garment. Light in weight, not at all cumbersome, no interference with breathing nor the proper functioning of the entire system. And the way these little scintillas mold the figure is nothing short of magic. They disguise the flabby bulges, they give the figure a shapely, flowing line that speaks of youthful firmness. Best of all, they are priced so that every woman's purse can afford one.

I'm all for these little girdles, scintillas and such—the new, light, clever kind. Not that I advocate covering bulges. Far be that from me. Those of you who have followed this column closely know that I am a stickler for exercise. More power to the young girl and young woman whose figure naturally is firm, bump-less and graceful. By all means exercise yourself back to youthful firmness. And while you are doing it—call in an ally in the form of the new little corsets.

Correct sitting posture is as important to health and beauty as correct standing posture. And poor sitting posture can cause constipation, indigestion, biliousness, nausea, headaches, poor appetite, sluggish liver and dozens of similar evils. Stand and sit erect and the muscles of the abdomen are in their proper positions and the digestive organs—stomach, liver, intestines—are receiving their requisite blood supply. Slouch and this circulation is impaired.

Don't Forget Real BAYER Aspirin Starts "Taking Hold" in Few Minutes

Here is quicker relief from pain—the fastest safe relief, it is said, ever known. This is due to a scientific discovery by which BAYER Aspirin starts "taking hold" of pain a few minutes after taking.

The illustration of the glass here tells the story. A Bayer tablet starts to disintegrate or dissolve—go to work—almost instantly. This means quick relief from pain—fewer lost hours from headache, neuritis, rheumatism. And safe relief. For genuine Bayer Aspirin does not harm the heart.

When you buy, see that you get the genuine Bayer Aspirin. The best way is never to ask for aspirin by the name "aspirin" alone. But if you want Bayer Aspirin's quick relief always to say "BAYER Aspirin."

WHY BAYER ASPIRIN WORKS SO FAST
Drop a Bayer Tablet in a glass of water. Note that BEFORE it touches bottom, it has started to disintegrate. What it does in this glass it does in your stomach. Hence its fast action.

CHILDREN'S STORY

THORNTON W. BURGESS

JERRY AND PETER TALK THINGS OVER

NOW that his house was finished Jerry Muskrat felt that he was entitled to a little rest. He had worked faithfully. Now he could enjoy the results. It certainly was a fine house. Peter Rabbit said so quite as if he were a judge of houses. You know any old tumbledown house some one else has given up will do for Peter.

"Yes," said Jerry, "it is a pretty good house. It is a better house than my old one. I am glad I have finished it. A house like that means a whole lot of hard work."

"I should say so!" exclaimed Peter. "I wouldn't work like that for the finest house that ever was."

Jerry Muskrat shook his head at Peter reprovingly. "Peter," said he, "you never look beyond your own nose, do you?"

"Why, of course I do," replied Peter. "If I didn't, how would I ever see anything?"

Jerry laughed. "I didn't mean that just that way," he explained. "I mean you never look ahead and plan for the future. Now you haven't prepared a single thing for the coming winter, have you?"

"No," replied Peter promptly. "Each day brings its own troubles and they are plenty, thank you. I don't see any use at all in worrying about things that may never happen. It is time enough to worry when there is something to worry about."

"Why, of course I do," replied Peter.

"Who is worrying?" demanded Jerry. "I'm not worrying. It is just to keep from having to worry that I have been working so hard. Now, you know, Peter Rabbit, that just as surely as you are sitting here on this bank you are going to have a hard winter. You are going to have hard work to get enough to eat; you are going to have hard work to get around in bad weather, and you are going to shiver with the cold."

"Maybe we won't have a bad winter," interrupted Peter.

"Now, I," continued Jerry, without heeding the interruption at all, "am going to be perfectly comfortable, no matter what kind of a winter we have. It won't make any difference to me how cold or how stormy the weather may get. It won't make that much difference." Jerry slapped the ground with his tail. "In that house is a nice, soft, comfortable bed of grass. Those walls are so thick the cold will not get through. Jack Frost will freeze the mud in the walls and roof so hard that none of my enemies can tear them open. I can swim about under the ice when I please. After I have rested a little I shall store up a few supplies of food in a storehouse I have provided in the bank. Then Jack Frost may come as soon as he pleases. All winter long I shall live in perfect ease and comfort and all because I have looked ahead and prepared for it by a 'little hard work now'."

"Huh!" said Peter. Then at a sudden thought he added, "Do you have to lay up a store of food?"

"Oh, no," replied Jerry. "I don't have to. Usually, I can find enough roots and things in the mud at the bottom of the Smiling Pool."

"Then what do you do it for?" demanded Peter. "That's what I call a waste of time, not to mention the work."

"Nothing of the kind," retorted Jerry. "It is thrift. It is making sure in case I shouldn't be able to get all I need from the bottom of the Smiling Pool."

"Huh," said Peter. "Huh! I never do any work I don't have to."

"Which means that you haven't yet learned how to live," laughed Jerry Muskrat.

FIRST OF ALL

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

I HAVE a thousand things to do today, and one is writing you—Curtains to clean, and hang again, And then a little mending; then Take out a stain from that new dress, The one I wrote about (I guess)—It seems that every morning brings Around about a thousand things.

Now, some might say, "What shall it be The first of all?" It seems to me—Though curtains are important, and A stain is something I can't stand, And other things my eyes have met I haven't even mentioned yet—The first of all, of things to mend, Is separation from a friend.

I fear too many of us say, "I'll have to write to her some day"—Yet I know nothing, high or low, That ever needs attention so, (I'd hate to think you did a lot Of little things, with me forgot)—I have a thousand things to do, But first of all is writing you!

POULTRY FACTS

GET PULLETS INTO WINTER QUARTERS

Time to Prepare for Young Birds' Comfort.

Now is the time to make final preparations for the winter egg supply. It should be remembered, says a writer in the Missouri Farmer, that the great bulk of winter eggs come from pullets hatched last spring—assuming they were hatched early enough so that they are now practically mature—so while the older hens should not be neglected the poultryman should pay special attention to the pullets. Every effort should be exerted to bring them into laying at earliest opportunity. One of the important things to do is to get them into winter quarters. The chief reason for this is that if laying while on the range, these laying pullets are very apt to suffer a set-back when transferred to permanent quarters. Frequently this set-back is so serious that it precipitates a fall molt and the pullets may experience a winter or early fall molt just at the time when eggs are higher in price. One of the problems of the poultryman is to avoid this fall vacation and early housing will tend to reduce the danger of this trouble. The usual recommendation is to house the pullets when as many as 5 per cent of the flock are laying, but generally speaking from now on the earlier the pullets are housed the better. By early housing the pullets become adjusted to their new quarters before starting in on their year of production and in addition they will probably be less susceptible to fall colds which always cut down production.

In the housing of pullets emphasis should be placed in the preparation of the winter quarters. First of all plans should be made to house the pullets in separate houses or pens as pullets fail to make satisfactory development if mixed with older hens. The presence of older hens not only exposes the pullets to diseases to which the hens may have become immune and yet may be able to transmit to the pullets in which immunity has not been established. Then, too, there is always the danger of the pullets becoming infested with external parasites. Again the presence of old hens causes the pullets to be reluctant in frequenting the feed hoppers and consequently with limited feed consumption growth and maturity are retarded.

Vaccination Advisable to Stave Off Fowl Pox

Fowl pox of chickens is a disease that affects the poultryman's pocket-book, for infected birds lay few eggs, and if the chicken's mouth and eyes are infected, the bird may die, according to Dr. C. C. Ellis of the New York state college of veterinary medicine. When pullets recover from fowl pox, as many do, they are immune from further attack.

Doctor Ellis says vaccination is desirable where flocks had fowl pox last year; vaccination is probably not desirable if the flock has never suffered an attack of fowl pox; but to be certain to avoid the disease this fall and winter, he suggests vaccination as a preventive measure. It is advisable to vaccinate while the birds are still on range. "Flocks that are affected with coccidiosis, worms, or any other diseased condition will likely suffer some losses. The vaccine is applied by first removing several feathers from the front part of one leg and then applying the vaccine with a small brush.

Capacity of the Hen

Until 20 years ago plain poultry keepers and scientists alike held the view that every hen came into the world with the possible number of eggs she might lay in her lifetime definitely fixed. No one knows who first promulgated this idea, or what reason he gave for it. Some way it got into circulation and was everywhere accepted without question. The utmost capacity of a hen was believed to be not more than 700 to 800.

POULTRY HELPS

Plowing up the ground helps to rid the soil of disease germs and intestinal worms.

Vitamin G is deficient in some poultry rations and such deficiency causes low hatchability of the eggs produced.

An extra quantity of green feed, such as chopped green alfalfa or Jersey kale, will darken the color of yolks of eggs and improve their quality.

Rigid culling throughout the growing season cuts the cost of raising chicks and lowers the mortality among them.

Chopped alfalfa hay and skimmed milk are potent sources of vitamin G and their inclusion in a ration for laying hens is recommended.

Three varieties of the Guinea fowl are known in America, the pearl, the white, and a patchy mixture of pearl and white. In Italy, it is said, there are some twelve color varieties.

STATUS OF GYPSY WOMEN

Women have always occupied rather a curious position among the gypsies. When a Romany girl marries she becomes her husband's servant as well as his wife. To symbolize this, when she goes to her lord's caravan after the gypsy wedding, she walks behind him and gathers firewood as she goes.

Yet women have a very important place in gypsy communal life. The most famous of all the gypsy rulers have always been "queens," like Esther Faa, of Yetholm, on the border, which was for 200 years the gypsy capital, and Gypsy Lee, the "Queen" of Kent, who died a few months ago and was buried with all the picturesque pageantry of her people. These "queens" exercise absolute power over their subjects, and the man whom they expelled from the tribe could never return to it.—London Answers.

Why the Sudden Change to Liquid Laxatives?

Doctors have always recognized the value of the laxative whose dose can be measured, and whose action can be controlled.

The public, too, is fast returning to the use of liquid laxatives. People have learned that a properly prepared liquid laxative brings a perfect movement without any discomfort at the time, or after.

The dose of a liquid laxative can be varied to suit the needs of the individual. The action can thus be regulated. It forms no habit; you need not take a "double dose" a day or two later. Nor will a mild liquid laxative irritate the kidneys.

The wrong cathartic may keep you constipated as long as you keep on using it.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a prescription, and is perfectly safe. Its laxative action is based on senna—a natural laxative. The bowels will not become dependent on this form of help. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is at all druggists. Member N. R. A.

RESTORED VOICE MAKES HIM WORLD'S HAPPIEST MORTAL

Abraham Golden, of Haverhill, Mass., lays claim to the title of the happiest man in the world. And there is, indeed, ample reason for Mr. Golden to be happy.

A year and a half ago he lost his power of speech when he underwent an operation for the removal of his larynx and vocal cords. Apparently doomed to be forever voiceless, life for Abraham Golden suddenly lost the greater part of its charm. Now, through a device of modern science, his voice has been restored, and life to him seems a more precious thing than ever before.

Artificial Larynx Brings Speech

The modern scientific device which restored Mr. Golden's voice is the artificial larynx developed in the Bell Telephone Laboratories in New York City during the course of research in acoustics and the transmission of speech. A year and a half ago, when Golden recovered from his operation, he had lost permanently his principal organ of speech. Today, he is able to carry on an animated conversation with any one by the use of the artificial larynx which has restored the power of speech and enabled Mr. Golden to take an active part again in the world about him.

"It's wonderful, it's wonderful," declares Mr. Golden. "It is the greatest thing in the world, and believe me, I am the happiest man in the world." The device not only has given him back the power of speech, but also has enabled him to get a good job as general foreman in a Haverhill shoe factory.

Tax Increases Are Reflected In Public Utility Rates

Uncontrollable expenses including an ever-mounting tax load, in the face of largely reduced business, have so increased the public utility companies burdens that further rate reductions are impossible at this time, James Simpson told the Illinois Commerce Commission at the opening of the rate hearings Tuesday.

Mr. Simpson, as Chairman of the People's Gas Light and Coke Company, Public Service Company of Northern Illinois and Commonwealth Edison Company, asked that the commission postpone its hearings looking toward a downward revision of rates until the companies and commission may know more about the future than it is possible to know today.

"The companies are making every effort to absorb the extraordinary and unforeseen expenses recently added to their burdens, hoping that they will not be forced to petition the Commission for relief thru increased rates," Mr. Simpson told the commission.

The commission decided to proceed with the hearing, assuring the companies that they would have ample time in which to present their side of the picture.

NEW LENOX

By Ramona Fink

A social gathering was held under the auspices of the Golden Rule Camp of the Royal Neighbors Thursday afternoon in the home of Mrs. Myrtle Alexander, the oracle. Mrs. Louis Wilson won high score in euchre and Mrs. Eunice Urch low score. The hostess assisted by Mrs. Merna Sievert served refreshments at the close of the game.

A Halloween party will be given at the school, Tuesday night, October 31st at 7 o'clock by the PTA. The public is invited to be present.

Persons who have any dishes or cooking utensils belonging to the M. E. church kitchen should return them as soon as possible.

The New Lenox Lions Club held its regular business meeting the luncheon which was served in the M. E. church dining room Thursday night. Mr. and Mrs. William Gullickson were recent guests in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Bishop in Chicago.

"Ruth in a Rush" a three act comedy which was presented in the Grade School Auditorium last Friday night by the Ladies Aid of the M. E. church was presented at the Ingalls Park M. E. church Thursday night.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Osmus entertained the pinocle club Saturday night. The couple was also celebrating their 14th wedding anniversary. Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Urch won high score prizes and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Fitzer, guests of the club, received consolation prizes. Mrs. Bertha Nieland of Frankfort, was a guest of the club. The hostess later served a two course luncheon. The next meeting will be held in two weeks in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Drake.

A card and bunco party will be held by the Royal Neighbors, Friday evening, October 27th in Urch hall.

The New Lenox Woman's Club was entertained in the home of Mrs. Leila Baers Wednesday afternoon. Dr. Jeannette Holt conducted the meeting and opened it with the pledge to the flag and community singing accompanied by Mrs. Aurelia Bruns at the piano. Mrs. Josephine Sayers gave a report of the fall tri-annual held in Channahon.

Mrs. Vera Osmus, chairman, presented the following program: A saxophone solo by Miss Audrey Osmus; "Fire Protection Week" was read by Mrs. Laura Morris; "After Prohibition What?" by Mrs. Maude Sine; the pronunciation of names of persons and places was directed by Mrs. Frances Gould; Mrs. Lucile Drake gave a talk on "Foods That Poison Some People." Mrs. Adeline Francis spoke on "Do You Know What You Are Eating?" and "Candy" by Mrs

Mokena PTA Represented At Wheaton Conference

Mrs. Milton Krapp of Mokena who was a delegate to the Wheaton conference of the Illinois Congress of Parents and Teachers has made the following report of same held October 4th in the Wheaton Presbyterian Church.

The meeting was called to order at 9:30 a. m. and the guests were welcomed by Mrs. B. R. Ryall, Council President of Wheaton.

The conference was opened with a prayer by Rev. C. B. Newsom of Wheaton.

Next there were five objectives given for 1933-34:

1. School Co-operation.
2. Leisure Time.
3. Health.
4. Legislation.
5. Parent Education.

K. K. Tibbetts spoke on School Co-operation. He says the PTA is a great help to education. It helps to bring about a better understanding between the parents, the home, and the school teacher.

More important than all other things is the personal influence of the teacher upon the students.

R. D. Gregg took leisure time for his paper subject. The main thought of this paper was that the home is like laboratory for the children. That there should be closer relationship between parents and children. (Helping each other.)

Miss Ruth E. Hanson spoke on "Health". This was an enjoyable talk on Child Health, stressing much upon the need of every one of us drinking more milk each day and to do as we tell the child to do, about eating and drinking.

Child health was covered by Mrs. Ball, Chief of Hygiene, Division on Child Health. Mrs. Ball said we often make mistakes when speaking of child health and child welfare mistaking the one for the other, so she gave these two definitions:

(a) Child Hygiene, pertains to the health only.

(b) Child Welfare, pertains to behavior problems.

Parent education by Mrs. Byron Field was also very timely. Mrs. Field showed that every PTA should have some educational meetings. She gave three suggestive meetings.

1. Understanding Ourselves.
2. Bringing the father back into the family circle.
3. National and international affairs, also that we might learn where our tax money goes and why teachers are not paid, etc.

Mrs. John Sharpless Fox spoke on "The Radio Survey." The PTA thru their KYW survey, have found that many of the children's programs are gruesome and a menace. A good number of mothers know this to be true from their own experiences. They say they are checking up on these programs and hope to have more wholesome programs for the children this fall.

Introduction of Board Members and District.

Community Singing.

The Parent-Teacher Movement by Mrs. Holland Flagler, President of Illinois Congress of PTA.

The state president said: "As we are having a National Recovery Act for the business of America so we should have a National Recovery Act in the homes for parents."

Children of depression need the same high standards of school as the children of prosperity.

A delicious luncheon was served in the church basement.

AFTERNOON SESSION 1 P. M.

Music. Singing Mothers of Hinsdale.

Music and Art. Dr. Kelly, president of Art Institute. Dr. Kelly gave a very interesting talk on Art, saying that not only music, and painting were considered as art, but that every kind of work or business was an art in itself.

Some schools have dropped the teaching or art during these trying times, but it really is necessary.

The Illinois Congress of Parents and Teachers and A Century of Progress by Mrs. R. D. Pringle.

Mrs. Pringle says the Ill. Congress of PTA has a very interesting exhibit at the World's Fair.

The Child and His Community by Mrs. B. F. Longworthy, 1st vice-president of state. The church, the home, the schools and all organizations all make these, are influences that go to make up the community.

Even gambling houses are an influence. Look around at night and see how many public buildings are lighted up every evening. The gambling places, yes. The schools, the churches, the libraries, what about all these?

2 to 2:45 P. M. INDIVIDUAL GROUP MEETINGS

Mrs. Adolph Steen, attended the meeting on health, which was conducted by Mrs. Ball. There was a nurse from the Red Cross at this meeting who told about the immunization of children against diphtheria and scarlet fever. She said it was a good thing except for children under three years of age. It didn't seem to take effect under that age. They said if we cared too by individuals paying a small fee, we could have a nurse come out and give talks on nursing the sick, giving first aid, etc.

Mrs. Milton Krapp attended the meeting on Better Films which was conducted by Mrs. Chester Greene.

This talk was mostly for people who lived in cities and send their children to their neighborhood theatres. She said it would be possible for parents to have all good clean shows at their theatres if they would only co-operate with the theatre owner or manager. That we can accept or reject the pictures. If rejected we should not only file a complaint with the management of the theatre, but also write the producer of such picture.

Mrs. M. Nebeke, attended the meeting for presidents which was conducted by Mrs. H. Flagler.

A "Get Acquainted" party in honor of Rev. and Mrs. Ralph Gray, will be held in the M. E. church on Saturday night of this week at 7:30 p. m. All the friends of the church are cordially invited.

Mr. and Mrs. Willis Hall have moved to Chicago in order to be nearer Mr. Hall's place of employment.

Mrs. Elmer Sippel has undergone an operation at the Mayo Brothers hospital in Rochester, Minnesota.

Eddie Mau has recovered from his recent attack of scarlet fever.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles J. Hacker left this week on an auto trip to Bradon Castle, Florida where they will spend the winter.

Leon Tonn will be the guest soloist at the Lockport M. E. church on Sunday next. He will also visit with Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Weber and Mr. and Mrs. Lee Evans, former Mokena residents.

The ladies who served in the "coffee" of the St. John Evangelical church Ladies Aid last Thursday afternoon were the mesdames Philip Hacker, Peter Mancke, Henry Schoenbeck, John Mattes, Arthur Maue, Wm. Lowe, Henry Krohn, Sr., Geo. Knudson and Mary Barenz.

The society decided to give a Plunkett dinner in the near future.

Mrs. Albert Strassenburg returned to her home Monday from the St. Bernard hospital in Englewood. She is improving slowly.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Semmler and daughters Adeline and Ada attended the wedding of Mrs. Semmler's nephew, Robert Oestreich which took place at the Richard Street M. E. church in Joliet Sunday afternoon.

Mrs. Wm. Semmler met with a very painful accident Wednesday afternoon while operating a sewing machine when the needle pierced the forefinger of the left hand.

MOKENA SCHOOL NEWS

Friday afternoon there will be no assembly program.

The grade school will have their Halloween parties. Prizes will be given to the best costume for the boys and girls in the first, second, third, fourth and fifth grades.

There will be no school on Friday November 3rd and therefore no assembly will be given that week.

Miss Doig's room will have charge of the assembly program, Nov. 10. All parents and friends are invited.

The monkey climber was lowered a foot to prevent injuries to small children.

The play put on by the High School room at assembly last Friday was very interesting to all. The play brought out some interesting facts. Everybody knew Edward Lauffer had large feet, but nobody realized he would need two pairs in which to soak them. Where did Delbert Gabel get the Jamaica Ginger? The cold remedies might help those who saw the play and they certainly would have a variety from which to choose. So down with colds!

The sophomores and freshmen had their wiener roasts the 18th of October. The freshmen are still trying to solve a mathematical formula which will remove the financial deficit encountered by the wiener roast.

Mrs. Houston is still waiting for the solution as she advanced the money.

M. E. STEWARDSHIP READING CONTEST CLOSED SUNDAY

The closing of the Stewardship Reading Contest of the Orland Park M. E. church brought out the largest attendance last Sunday of the season. The race between the three teams had been nip and tuck during the last week of the contest and each team captain made a special effort to induce all the members of their respective teams to attend the final services of the contest to boost their team point total. A regular whirlwind campaign finish was put on by postal cards, phone calls and personal visits and the attendance showed most wonderfully the results of their efforts. The final tabulation of the standing of the teams announced at the close of the services showed the three teams running very close together. The "Green" team captained by Mrs. Louis Arnold was the leader with a total of 462 points with Mrs. Tom Cooke, "Blues" and Miss Iva Hanson's "Reds" following with 438 and 425 points respectively.

As part of the original plan was to have the winning team banqueted by the losing team, at which time the subject matter of the reading contest would be discussed, plans for this event are being made and the date announced next week.

The theme of the sermon preached by Rev. John Mullen was announced as being "More than Conquerors" and was taken from Romans 8 - 37. The pastor decried conflict where victory brought only sordid personal gain or glory and declared that "Victory for spoils only has spoiled many victories."

The singing of the choir was especially praiseworthy and showed the excellent results that Mr. Wunderlich is obtaining through his sacrificing efforts. Mr. Wunderlich's solo "Not Understood" was rendered with an artistry of beauty and charm that lead the pastor to announce, after its conclusion, that any sermon he could preach would seem poor in comparison to the sermon contained in the singing of that solo.

The Story Hour, for children 4-8 will meet next Saturday at 2:00 P. M., in the church basement. Will the children please bring shears and any old magazines available. Will anyone who has old copies of the National Geographic magazine and is willing to part with them for the use of this group, call the parsonage.

The Mothercraft Class discontinued through the summer months, is to start again next Sunday morning. This class meets at the time of the Sunday School hour and is for the purpose of discussing problems pertaining to smaller children. All the mothers of children of this age are invited to join this class.

The opening Training Class of the season will meet Tuesday afternoon at 2:00 o'clock. This course will be "Organization of the Kindergarten Department."

The largest Protestant mass meeting ever held in Chicago is planned for 3:30 o'clock Sunday afternoon, November 5th, when Dr. E. Stanley Jones, world Christian leader and author of "The Christ of the Indian Road" and other books, speaks under the auspices of the United Foreign Missionary Conference at the Chicago Stadium. Admission will be by free ticket, which may be obtained from the pastor, Monday and Tuesday conferences downtown with foremost foreign missionaries. All members and friends of this church will wish to attend this great missionary rally.

The meeting of the official board of the church was held in the church basement last Wednesday, at which time the final details of the church budget were worked out and adopted. Following the meeting, the members adjourned to the parsonage where Mrs. Mullen had a very pleasant surprise in store for them, serving a buffet luncheon of "hot dogs" with all the usual trimmings, home made cake, coffee and tea. Announcement of this is made for two reasons, first to popularize attendance at the Board meetings and secondly, in the hope that the Mrs. Mullen will be inclined to repeat the performance at succeeding meetings of the Board.

The budget has been carefully and prayerfully worked out and copies have been mailed to all the constituency. Within the next few days, the church stewards will make the annual canvass for pledges to meet this budget and each friend of the church is earnestly requested to pledge as fully and as freely as his ability will permit to carry on the great forward work of the church of Christ in Orland Park for the coming year.

At next Sunday's service the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper will be observed.

Gas Heat give you an extra hour's sleep

Picture of a man building a fire in a home heated with GAS

To prove that every home can now afford to heat with gas, we'll install it at our expense and remove it at our expense, if you don't like it.

MAN, but it's great to get an extra hour of sleep in the morning. And wake up and find that the house is warm. No running down the cellar steps in pajamas to fire the furnace. Automatic gas heat brings real joy to every home. Eliminates all furnace tending and watching, grate shaking, ash hauling, chopping kindling, setting dampers and waiting for heat to come up.

With gas heat there is no dust, grime or dirt. Walls and drapes stay clean. Less dusting and scrubbing—advantages every housekeeper desires.

Why not install gas heat in your home and get the pleasure of automatic heat for the nine winter months to come? Rates for gas heat are now one-half of what they were in the 1930-31 season. Every home can now afford the luxury of gas heat.

Let us install gas heat now. Just tell us that you want to try gas heat. We will install it in your furnace or boiler and bear the entire cost. Then you try it one month, two months or a year. While you are trying gas heat you pay only $3 a month rental for the equipment included in the bill for the gas you use.

And if, for any reason, during the first year you want it removed we take it out and the rental charge stops immediately. If you decide that you want to keep gas heat, the rental you have paid applies on the purchase price of the equipment. Phone your nearest Public Service Store for information.

The greatest of World's Fairs ends November 12. Be sure to see it.

PUBLIC SERVICE COMPANY OF NORTHERN ILLINOIS

NEST EGGS

Electricity and gas do more for the women of northern Illinois than assist them in their household duties—it gives them a nest egg.

For there are almost as many women stockholders as men in the Public Service Company of Northern Illinois.

Of the 27,418 stockholder-owners of the Company, 10,853 of them are women and 12,049 are men.

The women gain additional investment in the Company through the 3,367 joint ownerships in which husbands and wives usually participate and the 1,149 remaining stockholders are corporations, such as insurance companies, lodges, churches, trade unions and other such organizations.

So, in cleaning carpets, washing and ironing clothes and performing other household tasks with the aid of electricity and gas, women have developed a faith in the service which has led them to invest in it.

Advantage in Shipping Bullion by Airplane

When quantities of gold have to be sent long distances they are now very frequently being dispatched by air, or, if air services aren't available all the way, by air and sea.

"It's cheaper by air," say the people concerned. They have worked it out that the saving of interest alone, which results from the rapidity of air transport, is more than sufficient to meet the express charges made for the service.

The saving of time is certainly remarkable. In one recent case, a parcel dispatched from Los Angeles to Poona, in India, crossed America by air mail, and then, after the Atlantic voyage by liner, was sent by the Imperial Airways service to India. The whole journey took eighteen days, a saving of over a fortnight as compared with ordinary transport methods.

There is a still greater saving in the case of packages to Bagdad. The time by air and sea from New York is only eleven days, as against thirty-six to forty-two days by the older transport methods.—London Tit-Bits.

SYNOPSIS

A girl finds herself in a taxicab in New York with a strange man who speaks of "an awful shock." Escaping from him, she stops at the Biltmore, wondering who she is. Her memory is gone. She has a wedding ring. At the hotel a young woman vanishes with the girl's $900. An elderly woman, Mrs. Oscar Du Val, greets the nameless girl, addressing her as "Doris," wife of Mrs. Du Val's son, Rocky. Rocky is abroad, and Doris is taken to the home of Mrs. Du Val and her sculptor husband, Oscar. Doris falls in love with Rocky's photograph, but cannot remember having married him. Rocky returns. He demands to know who she is and why his wife sent her to his home. She cannot tell him. They agree, for the sake of his parents, to pretend they are husband and wife. Rocky takes Doris to his New York apartment to confront his wife. He finds the flat empty. Doris sees the real wife's photograph and recognizes her as the girl who stole her $900. Doris finally tells Rocky she has lost her memory. In a newspaper they see a headline, "Killer Bride's Gun Found; Diane Merrell's Father Identifies It." Doris faints. When she recovers, her memory has not returned. Rocky informs her he is going to take her to Canada by motor. They set out.

This time when Doris opened her eyes, she discovered that two men were watching her. One was the same old man. He had brought a friend in this time, a person of equally respected years.

As Doris looked up, he was putting on his gold-rimmed glasses to augment the mechanical stare which he was directing at her. Having finally adjusted them so that they would stay on, he transferred his fumbling fingers to a folded newspaper which he had been holding under his arm. This he opened up part way so that the other man could see.

"You see?" he said. The other man nodded. He glanced furtively now at Doris and said something which she couldn't hear to the man with the newspaper.

Doris gasped. There was a terrific leer on the old man's face.

"Rocky!" she called. Rocky had followed the mechanic into the garage office, but now he came running. She noticed with relief that he was wearing his coat again and a smile.

"Okay once more," he opened the front door of the car. "Now we can start." Then he noticed the two men. He got into the driver's seat quickly without a word to Doris. He started his engine just as the hand of one of the men fell on his arm. "Hey, look out," he yelled, swinging free his arm, "if you don't want to get run over." The car started backing out, but the two old men clutched at him excitedly.

"Wait a minute young feller," cried the one with the newspaper, "we want to speak to you!" But Rocky's car with a blustering commotion had backed out to the road. It stalled a minute, reversed, took another gasping leap forward and was up the road in a long diminishing streak.

Rocky drove like a mechanical demon. His head was pitched slightly forward, his arms and shoulders motionless as he held to the wheel—his senses alert to only one thought, speed. Doris felt frightened.

"You seem to know these roads?" "Yeah. Friend of father's lives near here. I used to visit him every summer. Rockwell St. Gardens."

Their way lay through dark wooded hills. "Are we going to ride all night?" "Depends."

"Depends on what?" she wanted to ask, but she felt too drowsy. There was hardly any use anyway, as he was sure not to answer. He was going so swiftly now. They were racing up the long mountain, taking curves recklessly.

And something was following. Rocky was right.

She couldn't worry any more. Her head sank down. She was leaning unconsciously against him. She slept.

The car stopped with a jerk. A white light flashed over her face. Men were shouting. She sat up.

A man was standing beside the car. In the gush of light that streamed from his hand she saw his uniform. He was a policeman. In the reflected light, the shadowy outline of his fat face looked stern.

Another man was shouting. Doris turned her head and saw that a roadster full of men was drawn up directly behind them in the pine-fringed road. She could see another policeman getting out of the car. He held a revolver.

Rocky's hand quivered on the wheel. "Don't say anything," he whispered to Doris.

White lights stabbed the road, threw queer shadows into relief. Again the strong white glare of a flash-light struck her between the eyes.

"Looks like her, Murphy, all right!" "I want to speak to the young lady," said the policeman at Rocky's elbow. Rocky's voice was without a quail. "Speak to me instead." The light flicked up and over Rocky's face. "What's your name?" "Rockwell Du Val." "See your license?" Rocky produced it. This had all happened before, but this time Doris knew that the looking at the license was a pretense. The man on her right on the motorcycle was so close. And why did he have his gun in his hand? "Who's the young lady?" Rocky did not falter as he lied: "My wife."

Two more men were coming from the car behind. There was a fearful, quiet tread, a breathless expectancy in their walk. Knowing nothing yet, Doris felt terrified. She tried to control her panic. Rocky was being so bold, and yet she knew that he, too, was frightened.

"Has the lady any identification?" "Yes, Plenty."

"Let's see some of it." Doris could feel Rocky's nervous inward tremor while she listened to his assumed belligerence: "What's this all about?"

"We'll come to that." A small wiry man in plain clothes interpolated briskly: "We've got you. No use trying to pull anything. Better get out of the car, mister."

"Am I under arrest?" "You'll find out what you're under." "You bet I'll find out what I'm under. And I'll find out before I get out of this car, too."

The fat-faced cop elbowed the small wiry man aside. "Just wait. Let's find out about this. Nobody's under arrest yet."

"That's better," said Rocky. A dozen flashlights played over Doris' face. Now she heard a murmur among the men.

"Looks like her all right."

"Sure it's her."

"Have you any other identification besides your license?"

"Yes."

"Can you prove that this lady is your wife?"

Again the lights bombarded her. She covered her face with her hands. What did they mean?

"Don't do that!" said Rocky to Doris out of the corner of his mouth. "Look them straight in the eye!" She obeyed, quivering.

Rocky addressed the officer standing beside him: "I'm a friend of Rockwell St. Gardens. He'll identify us in a minute."

There was a slight sensation.

The wiry man came and stood beside them.

"You say you know Rockwell St. Gardens?"

"Yes, I know him very well."

"Does he know your wife?"

"Yes."

"Your name is Rockwell Du Val?"

"Yes, I'm named after St. Gardens."

The policemen conferred. The man on the motorcycle still balanced close to Doris, the engine of his motorcycle shuddering gently as he guarded the car.

The officer returned. "I'm sorry to ask you, but you'll have to come to the station with us. We received a tip over the telephone that Diane Merrell was in this car!"

"That's utterly ridiculous," Doris felt Rocky's strong grip on her arm. The bluster in his tone was a thinly concealed artifice.

Nevertheless she could feel a change in the atmosphere. The policemen were uncertain. Rocky knew it too. She could feel a new strength in his voice as he said again, "Look here. Are we under arrest?"

"Nothin' like that. We just got to take you up to the station if you don't mind, mister."

Rocky cut in crisply. "But I do mind. I've been driving all day and my wife is tired."

"Yeah, but, mister, in a case like this we gotta be mighty careful. And we got this tip—"

"If you want to arrest us, that's your lookout," said Rocky. The fat-faced cop pushed his face into the car, looking over the wheel at Doris. "We'll go up to St. Gardens' place with you. How's that? If St. Gardens can identify you—"

He opened the door of the roadster as he spoke.

"I'll drive," he said to Rocky, "You can come along in the car behind."

Doris protested involuntarily. "No. No. Don't leave me, Rocky."

"If we're not under arrest I think I'll drive," said Rocky gravely. The cop grunted. He walked around the car and got in beside Doris. "O. K. Let's go."

The man on the motorcycle sent his machine leaping ahead of them.

The cool air came rushing gratefully to Doris' pale cheeks as the car got under way. Her shoulder was tucked under Rocky's like a small chicken nestling under its mother's wing. What was the name of the girl the police wanted? Anne Somebody. Was that her real name? Had her real self been found at last. And was she a criminal?

Doris put these thoughts away. Supposing they accused her of the worst of crimes. How could she deny them? What, oh what could she have been in that other lost life of hers?

They turned at last between stone gate posts. "This is the place all right," said the cop.

They rode for three-quarters of a mile before the lights of the house appeared.

At last Rocky drew up before the door of the great house. He shut off the engine, opened the door and jumped out.

"Come on, Doris."

The motorcycle cop drew up beside them. "Not so fast."

Doris knew then that the policemen were still suspicious. Rocky had run ahead up the steps of the house, and was ringing the bell. Doris with a policeman on either side of her followed more slowly.

Her heart was beating wildly. The door opened slowly. A blond impassive face looked out.

"Hello, Swenson. Is Mr. St. Gardens in?"

The butler swung the door open. "Yes, Mr. Du Val. Come in."

Rocky motioned to Doris. She went into a square hallway. The policeman came too.

On a landing above a short, square-set figure appeared. He had on a dressing gown, and held a book in his hand. He stared at the group for a minute in amazed silence.

"Rocky! Is it Rocky, for heaven's sake?"

"It's Rocky. I've brought my wife," Rocky was bounding up the stairs to the landing. Doris saw him take the short square man by the shoulder and say something. Then St. Gardens turned and came down the stairs with outstretched hands.

"Doris! It's so nice to see you again. I was wondering when you would turn up. You must be tired from your journey. Been traveling all day?"

Doris was confused. She took St. Gardens' hands gladly, smiled at him without speaking, but it was the vague act of a bewildered and exhausted child.

She sat down in the nearest chair. The room was going round and round. She hardly heard the policeman. She knew that everything was being arranged. Everything was all right. Rocky had fixed things.

The policemen went away. The door was closed.

"Beatrice isn't in. Someone's giving her a dinner and dance at the country club. I didn't stay. I just got in," said St. Gardens. "Lucky I did, too. Wasn't that a rammy thing—those dumb cops picking you up like that?"

"Terrible," said Rocky. "They were so suspicious I thought it would save a lot of trouble if you pretended you had already met Doris. May I introduce her now?"

Doris roused herself. St. Gardens was holding out both his hands. "This is a great pleasure, my dear. Rocky has always been like my own son to me."

Doris put her hands hastily across her own eyes. She knew she was acting badly, but it was all so puzzling to her tired mind.

"She's exhausted," said Rocky apologetically.

St. Gardens apparently didn't know her. He had pretended to recognize her in order to save her from the police. He thought she was the real Doris. She was to fool him as she had fooled the Du Vals. She rose trembling, a hand pressed against her cheek.

"No, no!"

"What's the matter?"

They could not follow her thoughts. She was being stupid. She could not pretend to be the real Doris any more. She was really that girl—that criminal the policemen were seeking. She looked at Rocky with widened eyes.

"I can't stand it. I'm—"

St. Gardens took her elbow. His voice, rich and caressing, spoke to her softly: "You are very tired. You have been through a dreadful ordeal. I can see that. And now you want to go to your room."

"Let me take her upstairs," said Rocky. "You are right. She needs to go to bed. She's knocked out."

"It's enough to knock anybody out—being mistaken for a murderer," said St. Gardens sympathetically.

Doris looked at him.

A murderer.

That's what she had done. She had committed a murder. The room was still rocking, but she no longer felt tired. St. Gardens' words had galvanized her. New life, like second wind coming to a tired swimmer, flooded her. She looked at Rocky in agony. What did St. Gardens mean?

Rocky read the question in her eyes, but he deliberately ignored it.

"Come, you must go to bed."

Doris wanted to speak but her mouth felt dry. Meantime Rocky, as if anticipating her purpose, had begun to talk heatedly about their trip. And he was helping her up the stairway.

A maid came. Rocky went out to get her bags, leaving her standing at the top of the stairs beside St. Gardens. She looked at him with twisted brows.

"What did you say a minute or two ago about a murder?"

St. Gardens smiled. "Oh nothing. I was just referring to the stupid business of the local law enforcers in mistaking you for what's her name—the girl who shot her husband at a wedding."

Doris clutched the stair railing. She was looking into a bottomless gulf. "What's her name—the girl who shot her husband at a wedding?"

She was what's-her-name—a girl who shot her husband at a wedding. Rocky ran up the stairs, bag in his hand.

"What's the matter?" he said sharply.

Doris said shakily, "He said, what's-her-name—a girl who shot her husband at a wedding—am I—"

Rocky took her firmly by the arm. "You come to bed." To St. Gardens he said: "She's hysterical."

"And no wonder."

St. Gardens left them, but she did not notice. She knew that Rocky was pushing her into the bedroom, and sending the maid away. He was closing the door.

Want Mantis to Prey on Beetles

The species of praying mantis that is being offered to the American Museum of Natural History by scores of persons who believe the giant insect is a rarity, is said to have been introduced into the United States by way of Philadelphia. The big predatory clown is far from rare, and though the praying mantis is of color and shape that makes it difficult to find, it is often seen hereabouts in positions suggesting a designed pose.

The world has some 800 species of mantis, and there are about 20 species in the United States. The Chinese variety is several inches long and when watching for its game looks like something a child or whimsical adult might have fashioned, in jocular mood, from hairpins and cellophane, with a thin coat of green added to match the foliage.

The forelegs are folded as if the creature held deep religious feelings, but the fervor is merely appetite, the position one of stealthily lurking for prey. And the mantis is a ready fighter, too, after the boxer's manner, when a desired luncheon puts up a scrap of the inedible sort.

The Chinese praying mantis, which can clown, and will if invited, by rolling its head all the way around, eats good and bad insects alike, but Philadelphians wish he would set himself to devour billions of Japanese beetles.—Philadelphia Bulletin.

Mother Takes a Holiday

AND DAUGHTER DOES THE WASH IN HALF THE TIME

Cuts Out All Boiling, Scrubbing, Rubbing
Soaks Clothes Clean In 15 Minutes!

1 MY DAUGHTER IS DOING THE WASH TODAY! SHE'S BEEN STUDYING DOMESTIC SCIENCE, AND SHE OFFERED TO DO IT "THE MODERN WAY"—WITH A SOAP CALLED OXYDOL.

2 GOOD HEAVENS! HERE SHE IS NOW —AND IT'S ONLY ELEVEN O'CLOCK.

3 SHE'LL SOON FIND OUT IT'S NO FUN, WHATEVER SOAP SHE USES!

4 THERE! IS THAT WHITE? AND JUST FEEL IT—AND SMELL IT!

5 ALL DONE, MOTHER! COME AND SEE HOW SPARKLING WHITE YOUR WASHLINE IS!

6 THERE'S NO MYSTERY. 15 MINUTES' SOAKING IN CREAMY OXYDOL SUPS—NO SCRUBBING OR BOILING! AND THE CLOTHES WILL LAST AGES LONGER!

YOU'D THINK IT WOULD FADE THINGS, WORKING SO FAST, BUT ALL THE COLORED THINGS ARE BRIGHT AS NEW!

I REMEMBER NOW. OXYDOL IS PROCTER AND GAMBLE'S NEW GRANULATED SOAP.

SEE YOU LATER! I'M MEETING TOM FOR LUNCH.

I WOULDN'T HAVE BELIEVED A SOAP COULD MAKE ALL THAT DIFFERENCE!

THE JOKE'S ON US, ALL RIGHT. I'M GOING TO ORDER A PACKAGE OF OXYDOL RIGHT NOW!

DIRT SOAKED OUT LIKE MAGIC BY AMAZING NEW LAUNDRY SOAP

Ends Forever All Scrubbing And Boiling—Works Faster Than Any Soap Known Before—Yet Can't Harm Hands, Clothes, Or Colors

HERE is a new scientific soap development that has already revolutionized washdays in more than a million homes. A creation so amazing that women everywhere are asking—"Will the wonders of science never cease?"

An utterly new-type laundry soap. A soap that multiplies itself 500 TIMES in suds. Which means you get at least twice as much suds as from old-style soaps. A still faster-washing, still whiter-washing soap that's utterly SAFE for colors, fabrics, and hands.

This remarkable new discovery is called OXYDOL. And you will find to your surprise that even your favorite soap—whether "granulated," bar, or flake—is hopelessly out-of-date, compared with this new invention!

Women believed they had the fastest soap already. Then found it was slow, alongside OXYDOL. For OXYDOL utterly banishes boiling. It ends washboard scrubbing. It cuts soaking time to 15 minutes—gets clothes out hours sooner.

They believed they had the whitest washes they could possibly get. And are now amazed by washes 4 to 5 shades whiter than before. By impartial scientific test, ONE washing with OXYDOL gets clothes whiter than 2 to 4 washes with other soaps. But that's not all!

They find clothes actually last longer, washed with this new soap. That the faintest colors DO NOT fade. That it is easier on hands than any soap they've ever used. For no strong agents, no chemical bleaches are in OXYDOL. Just pure soap elements blended with others that protect clothes against fade. OXYDOL simply can't hurt anything clear water won't!

DISSOLVES Dirt—In Any Water, Hard Or Soft

Its creamy, "free-acting" suds dissolve dirt out in 15 minutes. No boiling, no back-breaking scrubbing is necessary. Nor any "water-softener," either. For the right amount of water-softener is already there.

Different from ordinary soaps, OXYDOL is specially fitted to water conditions in each district where it is sold. The water in this district, for example, has been tested for "hardness" by expert chemists. And the OXYDOL you buy here contains just the right proportion of "softener" to suit your water.

With OXYDOL you'll do your wash in 25 to 40% less time. You'll get a whiter, sweeter-smelling wash than ever before. Moreover, everything will iron beautifully—no soap streaks or smudges anywhere. And you'll never be bothered with fading colors or red, soap-bitten hands.

These things we promise you. Whatever your former favorite, try OXYDOL next time you wash. You'll never go back to slower soaps or harsher soaps again! Procter & Gamble.

ECONOMICAL
By actual test, a regular 25c package of Oxydol will do the work of 8 to 10 cakes of bar soap—or 2 to 3 times as much flakes.

How to Eat for Health and Beauty

Joel McCrea and Dorothy Jordan who will soon appear in "Girl Meets Boy," present a "before and after picture" of the sun tan process.

"THE darker the tan the whiter the teeth." It's true that teeth have been showing up to better advantage lately with tanned faces forming a flattering contrast. But teeth kept healthy and beautiful by diet, dentistry and brushing are sparkling additions to beauty all the year around. Fresh milk with its calcium and phosphorus; oranges or tomatoes with their Vitamin C, and cod liver oil supplying Vitamin D are the big three in tooth foods.

This Weeks Wonders

By RAY LEE

According to a "noise thermometer" the loudest noise is an airplane motor and propeller followed by a boiler, factory, riveting machine, thunder, a lions roar, Niagara Falls, and motor trucks, in the order named. The only thing I can think of to follow that, would be a milk man.

In Norway, drunkenness is proven scientifically, right at the police station. A drop of blood is examined for alcoholic content, and if it contains .61 per thousand of alcohol, the man is intoxicated. And you're sober even though you stagger out of the station and roar—"ray - hic, I only rehearsed - hic two-shifty - hic 'ray'".

Dr. Donald A. Laird of Colgate University, who conducted tests, says experiments prove, long hours of sleep are not necessary for one's well being. On the contrary, persons who sleep sound and "fast" for three or four hours, is less subject to fatigue than the person who sleeps long hours. The fellow across the hall from me the other night must have been following this "fast" theory. According to my watch he was going at the rate of fifty-five snores a minute.

Science claims that ninety per cent of the people of the world are crazy. Well, look around you. Men going down the street, overcoats buttoned up, and no hats on. Women wearing men's clothes. In olden times, the corset was a part of man's wearing apparel, and then women took up the fad. Now they're starting to wear our pants, and I think we'd be fully justified in demanding our corsets.

Incidentally, I might add to refer to a person that appears crazy, or of unsound mind, as "nuts" is very disrespectful, improper and vulgar. The proper expression is - "Nertz."

Beer has been traced back, not to Milwaukee but to the Egyptians. It was first made in Egypt. Now who brought beer to America? Why, whoever discovered America. You know it must have been something stronger than a high wind to start a boat load of explorers in the opposite direction from where they were going, and then arrive there. But - Wasn't it a "noble experiment?"

Preparing For Red Cross Roll Call

Men and women of Orland Park, and nearby suburbs are beginning to make plans for the Red Cross Roll Call, Armistice Day to Thanksgiving Day. La Grange, Oak Park, Evanston and Naperville are among the suburbs where a house to house canvass will be conducted.

That one investment made last year has brought big returns to the communities in Cook, DuPage and part of Lake counties is indicated by the Chicago Chapter report for the fiscal year ending June 30th. Food and clothing from the Farm Board converted wheat and the Farm Board converted cotton and their forms of relief, amounting approximately to $1,000,000 have been distributed to unemployed families. Contributions to this great piece of work amounted to less than $175,000.

James T. Nicholson, manager of the Chicago Chapter, states that such a record was made possible because the men and women of every community have cooperated; and he knows that Red Cross workers for the Roll Call will receive the same support that was given the Red Cross during the war. It is even more needed now than it was then!

BANDITS CAPTURED AS OPERATOR GIVES ALARM

A little colored boy, strolling casually down one of the main thoroughfares in the town of Arkadelphia, Ark., got the scare of his young life the other day. But as it turned out, it was well worth while. He happened to glance in through the big windows of the Citizens Bank and there he saw several men and women holding their hands high up over their heads, while two masked men were pointing pistols at them.

The boy rushed to the drugstore next door to the bank and told the clerk what he had seen. The clerk then called the telephone exchange, and the operator, Miss Ora Gorham, in turn called the marshal, sheriff, and other people who she felt might be of assistance. While she was doing this, she rang the extension telephone in the bank's vault continuously, thinking that if any one answered it, she would explain that help was being sent.

The continued ringing of the telephone bell alarmed the robbers, who rushed out of the bank and found themselves surrounded by the citizens of the town. The little negro boy and the operator, whose alertness in ringing the vault extension prevented the robbery, received much praise. The president of the bank also gave himself a pat on the back because the extension telephone in the vault had proved so valuable an investment.
